

Considering Attachment Issues in Developing Parenting Plans

AzAFCC Symposium featuring Cambridge University Professor Michael Lamb, Ph.D.

Dr. Lamb is recognized worldwide for his many contributions to our understanding of early family relationships and child care. His work has long impacted science and public policy in divorce and child custody. He is an expert on fatherhood in traditional and nontraditional families. He has been instrumental in developing techniques for forensic interviews with children. At this workshop, Dr. Lamb will present compelling evidence that parents are the most important influence on children's adjustment and well-being, and show how that influence can be both positive and negative.
